PREAMBLE

Cardiovascular disease is the most prevalent disease worldwide. It is the leading global cause of death, accounting for 15 million deaths in 2015. Cardiovascular disease often presents in emergency situations; prompt treatment is essential to reduce mortality. "Time is gold" has always been the cornerstone of cardiovascular emergency management, as every 30-minute delay in door to balloon time translates into 7.5% relative increase in mortality.

Rapid evolution in knowledge, technology, and healthcare system efficiency play important roles in saving patients' lives during cardiovascular emergencies. The common treatment goal is to shorten the door to balloon time; rapid ambulance transfer service, early emergency department triage, and seamless team work are key factors in lowering the door to balloon time to new limit.
