In Foundation course for I MBBS students batch 2019-20

12th August 2019 -The session was conducted on “Interpersonal Relationship” by Dr. Devvrat Harshe, Associate Professor, Dept. of Psychiatry from 9 – 10am in which importance, necessity& benefits of good interpersonal relationship was explained. So as to better understand, students in groups were given tasks to perform role plays to exhibit interpersonal relationships while interacting with colleagues, team members, peers, family members, superiors, health care professionals& patients. Further how these relationships can be enhanced was guided by the facilitator. Lastly he also explained about the professional boundaries.

The session on “Time Management” was conducted from 11am – 12noon by Mr. Prasanna Karmarkar. The Guest speaker started the session with quoting multiple examples of famous personalities in the world, who achieved success in their life, fulfilled their desires by effortful time management. He further advised the students about time management as part of daily habit so that it will help them maintain academic performance as well as life outside of college. Emphasis was given on inclusion of exercise, diet and reduction of all distractions from the life. He advised students to prioritize the work /activities in order to manage time better as important , urgent & least important & not urgent. Further he elaborated that those who spend most of the time in a) important work are winners, b) urgent work are survivors & c) least important & not urgent are losers. He advised the students to identify and handle their own distractions and interruptions. Lastly he gave take home message to come out of the comfort zone & dedicate time on important work for personal & professional growth.

On 19th August at 10am the session conducted was “Value education” by Dr. Archana Patil, Associate professor, Dept. of Biochemistry. To begin with the facilitator interacted with students to know their views regarding values & their importance. Then she explained how the value of integrity, honesty and respect during interaction affect interpersonal relationship with various healthcare workers and patients. To better understand these concepts she used appropriate examples & audio -video clips. She emphasized on the need of all these attributes like honesty, integrity, respect, team work, excellence, maturity, empathy, kindness, compassion, dress code, and body language, behavior to the medical student or a doctor in and out of the clinical environment.

At the end of the session case scenarios based on honesty, integrity and respect during interaction with patients, peers, consultants, faculty members and other health care workers were given to check level of understanding of students. . Lastly important points were summarized and Feedback on the session was taken from the students.

Between 11.30- 1.00pm next session was conducted on “Group Dynamics” by Dr. Vaishali Patil, Prof. Biochemistry. Session began with the game of “Crossing of river” with few life supports & hurdle of crocodiles obstructing the crossing. Students were divided in two groups, one group for given the task of crossing the river & other group acting as crocodiles & preventing the crossing. Then the same task was repeated for other group. Objectives were to make the students aware of the importance of team work & its benefits, how to behave in groups, effective working in small groups, recognize situations where group performance is more effective than individual work. Then the whole class gathered back in lecture hall, shared their experience with facilitator. Facilitator further discussed in detail various stages of working in group. Lastly facilitator explained the advantages & disadvantages of group dynamics. It was an interactive session. Students enjoyed the game based learning.

Report of (R-COMET) Programme, Nandwal.

Rural Community Oriented Medical education & Training Programme (R-COMET) was scheduled and conducted from 24/02/2020 to 26/02/2020 at Village Nandwal by department of Community Medicine, for IVth term students (Batch - A) Roll No.- 18001 to 18039 (Total - 39) students.

Day 1- 24/02/2020.

Orientation for R-COMET programme was conducted for IV term students (Batch - A) in demo room of Community Medicine at 9:30 am.

In orientation programme, Dr. S. S. Patil (Asso. Prof.) explained about family study, data collection, communication skills & interview techniques to students.

After that students were divided into 5 groups Each group consisted of 7-8 students & at least two students who could speak local language i.e. Marathi.

Day 2 - 25/02/2020.

Departure of students & staff from Dept. of Community Medicine at 09:30 am. Students were divided into groups for Family study & activities in the village. For each group the social workers assisted the students in orienting them at the ground level. One family per student was allotted for collection of all information of the family and their housing and environmental conditions. Family Survey was completed at 01:00 pm followed by lunch.

Health talk was given by Dr. T. A. More (Assist. Prof.) on “ Balanced diet for adolescent children ” in vidyamandir Nandwal.

Post lunch session was followed by ice breaking and friendly interaction within the groups. Debriefing of activities and data collection was done.

Students identified some problem areas in the community which were discussed with supervising teachers. Under guidance of teachers each group was given a problem area for community intervention to be worked upon next day. These problem areas are as follows - Personal Hygiene, Nutrition, Lifestyle Modification, Breast Feeding & Weaning.

Students prepared a skit on “Save baby girl ” and active participation of students was experienced. The skit was performed in front of villagers at Vitthal mandir, Nandwal as well as school students in vidyamandir Nandwal.
